COMPOSER PARTICIPATION AND MUSIC LICENCE AGREEMENT

Production Title: No Good at Crying

Director/Producer: Anthony Halladay ("Director")

Composer: Zazie Kanwar-Torge ("Composer")

Effective Date: 16th October 2026

This Agreement sets out the terms under which the Composer will contribute original music and related materials to the above-named independent film (the "Film"). Both parties acknowledge that the Composer's participation is voluntary and that the rights granted below are intended to allow the Director to complete, distribute, exhibit, and promote the Film.

1. Voluntary Participation and Compensation

The Composer agrees to contribute music to the Film on a voluntary, unpaid basis. No ordinary fee, salary, royalty, or other compensation is owed for the Composer's services or for the rights licensed under this Agreement, except as expressly provided below or required by applicable law.

Monetary festival awards: If the Film receives a monetary prize specifically awarded for the Composer's contribution or for the Film's music or score (for example, Best Original Score or Best Music), the Director agrees to pay the Composer the amount attributable to that award, subject to the festival's rules and any applicable restrictions. If the award is shared, divided, or allocated among multiple recipients, the Composer will receive the portion specifically attributed to the Composer or the music category.

A monetary prize awarded to the Film or to another individual for a different category does not automatically create a payment obligation to the Composer. Non-monetary awards, nominations, certificates, and trophies do not create a payment obligation unless the parties agree otherwise in writing.

The parties should confirm in writing how any award will be allocated if the festival's rules or award documentation do not clearly identify the recipient or amount.

Nothing in this Agreement waives any compensation, employment, or other rights that cannot lawfully be waived.

Performing-Rights Income. The Composer retains the right to receive all performing-rights royalties and other income payable to the Composer in connection with the Composer's musical compositions through any applicable performing-rights organization or similar rights-management body. Nothing in this Agreement transfers such income to the Director or the Production Company. Such income is separate from any compensation or payment obligations expressly established by this Agreement. The Director and Production Company are not responsible for guaranteeing or paying income distributed independently to the Composer by such organizations or bodies.Such income shall be collected and paid to the Composer through the applicable organization or system. The Director and Production Company shall have no separate obligation to pay the Composer performing-rights royalties or other compensation solely as a result of the Film's distribution, exhibition, streaming, broadcast, or other exploitation, except for any payment expressly provided for elsewhere in this Agreement or required by applicable law.

2. Scope of Work and Deliverables

The Composer will create and/or provide original music for the Film as mutually agreed by the parties.

The expected scope of work, delivery dates, formats, and any agreed revisions may be documented separately in writing, including by email or another written communication accepted by both parties.

Where agreed, deliverables may include:

- Original musical compositions and cues.
- Final audio recordings of the compositions.
- Alternative edits, shorter versions, or stems required for the Film.
- Cue titles, track descriptions, and other reasonable information needed for editing, sound mixing, credits, and distribution.
- An official playlist associated with the Film, as described in Section 7.

The parties should agree in writing on any substantial additional work beyond the original scope. The Composer is not required to provide project files, multitrack session files, software instruments, sample libraries, or other production materials unless expressly agreed.

3. Copyright Ownership

The Composer retains copyright ownership of the original musical compositions created by the Composer under this Agreement, including the underlying musical works, except for any rights separately assigned in a written agreement.

The Director does not claim ownership of the Composer's compositions merely because they are created for, synchronized with, or included in the Film.

The Director retains ownership of the Film and the other production materials owned by the Director or the applicable production company, subject to the rights of the Composer. The Composer does not acquire ownership of the Film merely by contributing music.

The parties acknowledge that a musical composition and its particular sound recording may involve separate rights. The Composer retains any rights the Composer owns in the compositions and recordings, subject to the licence granted in this Agreement. Any third-party contributions or rights remain subject to their applicable agreements.

4. Licence to Use the Music in the Film

In consideration of the Composer's voluntary participation and the terms of this Agreement, the Composer grants the Director a perpetual, worldwide, irrevocable, non-exclusive, royalty-free licence, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, to use the musical compositions and audio recordings delivered or expressly approved for the Film (collectively, the "Licensed Music") in connection with the Film and its exploitation.

This licence includes the right to:

1. Synchronize, reproduce, edit, arrange, shorten, lengthen, fade, loop, mix, and otherwise adapt the Licensed Music as reasonably required for the Film, provided that this does not transfer ownership of the underlying compositions to the Director.
2. Incorporate the Licensed Music into the Film, including its opening and closing credits, and into any agreed cut, edit, version, restoration, or format of the Film.
3. Reproduce, distribute, exhibit, publicly perform, transmit, stream, communicate, and otherwise make the Film available to audiences worldwide.
4. Submit, screen, exhibit, and distribute the Film through film festivals, competitions, showcases, educational screenings, private screenings, theatrical releases, television, streaming services, video-on-demand platforms, physical media, online platforms, and other current or future distribution channels.
5. Use the Licensed Music in trailers, teasers, promotional clips, social-media content, press materials, electronic press kits, posters, advertisements, festival submissions, awards campaigns, and other publicity directly connected with the Film.
6. Authorize distributors, sales agents, exhibitors, broadcasters, streaming services, festivals, publicity representatives, and other authorized partners to use the Licensed Music as necessary to distribute, exhibit, advertise, or promote the Film.
7. Make reasonable technical, editorial, and format changes necessary for distribution, accessibility, localization, restoration, or exhibition of the Film, including use alongside subtitles or dubbed versions.

The licence applies worldwide and continues after completion of the Film and after termination of the Composer's participation, subject to the terms of this Agreement and applicable law.

The licence is non-exclusive: the Composer may continue to use, perform, license, and distribute the Licensed Music independently, provided that doing so does not violate any separate written exclusivity agreement or disclose confidential, unreleased Film materials in breach of this Agreement.

This licence does not transfer copyright ownership. It grants the Director permission to use the Licensed Music for the purposes described above.

5. Distribution and Commercial Exploitation of the Film

The Director may distribute, license, sell, exhibit, monetize, and otherwise commercially or non-commercially exploit the Film through any lawful distribution method, including distribution by third parties.

The Composer's licence under Section 4 permits the Licensed Music to remain incorporated in the Film when the Film is sold, licensed, streamed, broadcast, screened, or otherwise distributed, including where the Director or a distributor receives revenue from such exploitation.

No additional synchronization fee, master-use fee, performance fee, royalty, or other payment is owed by the Director solely because the Licensed Music is used in the Film or in the Film-related promotional materials covered by Section 4, except where required by applicable law or expressly agreed in writing.

This section does not waive any non-waivable rights or obligations under applicable copyright, collective-management, employment, or other law.

The parties do not intend this Agreement to authorize the Director to sell or license the compositions as standalone music for unrelated films, advertisements, games, albums, or other independent projects. Such uses require a separate written agreement unless they are directly connected with the distribution or promotion of the Film as permitted above.

Independent Music Release, Portfolio, and First General Public Release

First General Public Release. For the purposes of this Agreement, the “First General Public Release” means the first public commercial, streaming, or online release of the Film authorized by the Director, the Production Company, or a Distributor. Private screenings, press screenings, and festival premieres do not, by themselves, constitute the First General Public Release.

Independent Music Release. Beginning on the calendar day immediately following the Film’s First General Public Release, the Composer may independently release, distribute, and monetize the musical compositions and recordings created for the Film, including through Spotify, Apple Music, YouTube, and similar platforms. The Composer retains all income payable to the Composer from such independent releases, subject to applicable third-party rights and agreements. These permissions do not limit the rights granted to the Director or Production Company to use, distribute, exhibit, promote, and otherwise exploit the Film and its authorized versions. The Composer may not distribute the Film in its entirety or use the Film’s visual materials except as permitted under this Agreement. Any independent release remains subject to applicable third-party rights and agreements.

Portfolio, Showreel, and Promotional Use. Beginning on the calendar day immediately following the Film’s First General Public Release, the Composer may use excerpts from completed scenes of the Film that contain music composed by the Composer for the Composer's professional portfolio, showreel, website, social media accounts, and other professional promotional materials. Such use must not infringe third-party rights or disclose confidential material that has not been publicly released. This permission does not grant the Composer ownership of the Film or the right to distribute the Film in its entirety.

Director Credit for Promotional Materials. In any showreel, promotional video, or other audiovisual promotional material created by the Composer that includes excerpts from completed scenes of the Film, the Composer shall provide clear on-screen credit to the Director. The credit shall appear and identify the Film by its title and the Director as follows:

"No Good at Crying — Dir. Anthony S. Halladay"

Where the promotional material includes end credits or a closing title card, the Director's credit shall be included there as well. The Composer shall not intentionally remove, obscure, or alter any existing Director credit appearing in the excerpt. The parties may agree in writing to reasonable variations where technical or platform limitations make the specified placement impracticable.

6. Third-Party Rights and Clearances

The Composer represents that, to the best of the Composer's knowledge, any original music delivered as original work under this Agreement will not knowingly infringe another person's copyright or other rights.

The Composer will identify in writing any third-party material incorporated into the delivered music, including samples, loops, pre-existing compositions, commercial recordings, or other material requiring permission, where the Composer knows or reasonably should know that such material is included.

The Composer will not knowingly include third-party material that prevents the Director from exercising the rights granted in this Agreement without first obtaining the Director's written approval.

Unless otherwise agreed in writing, the Composer is responsible for identifying and obtaining any permissions required for third-party materials independently introduced by the Composer into the delivered music. The Director is responsible for obtaining clearances for materials independently introduced by the Director or other members of the production.

Neither party guarantees clearance of third-party material controlled by someone else. Any material requiring additional permission must be identified early enough for the parties to decide whether to obtain clearance, replace it, or exclude it.

The Composer will provide reasonable information about the Licensed Music that the Director needs for a music-clearance register, festival submissions, distribution, or documentation of the Film's rights.

7. Official Film Playlist

The Composer will create and/or curate an official playlist associated with the Film on a mutually agreed music or streaming platform.

Unless the parties agree otherwise in writing, the Composer will retain control over the playlist's selection, ordering, description, and ongoing maintenance. The Composer may make reasonable changes to the playlist over time, taking account of the Film's identity and promotional needs.

The Composer grants the Director permission to promote the playlist in connection with the Film, including by:

- Linking to or embedding the playlist where the platform permits.
- Sharing its public URL and title in social-media posts, press materials, the Film's website, and other Film-related promotional materials.
- Identifying the playlist as the official playlist associated with the Film.
- Crediting the Composer as the playlist's creator or curator, where appropriate.

This permission does not transfer ownership or control of the playlist to the Director.

The inclusion of third-party songs in the playlist does not grant the Director permission to include those songs in the Film, its trailers, or other audiovisual materials. Such uses require separate clearance from the relevant rights holders.

The playlist itself is distinct from a soundtrack album. The parties will negotiate a separate written agreement before commercially releasing a soundtrack album or otherwise exploiting the Licensed Music as a standalone music product, unless they expressly agree otherwise in writing.

8. Composer Credit

The Director agrees to make reasonable efforts to credit the Composer in the Film's end credits using the following wording, or a substantially similar form agreed by the parties:

“Original Music by Zazie Kanwar-Torge”

The Composer will also receive appropriate credit in Film-related promotional materials where credits are customarily included and space or platform limitations reasonably permit.

The Director will make reasonable efforts to ensure that distributors and other authorized partners receive the correct credit information. The Director is not responsible for an accidental omission by an independent third party but will make reasonable efforts to request a correction when notified.

An inadvertent credit omission does not automatically terminate the licence granted under this Agreement.

9. Delivery, Revisions, and Technical Cooperation

The Composer will deliver the agreed materials in the formats and by the dates mutually agreed by the parties.

The parties will communicate in good faith regarding revisions, technical issues, cue placement, timing, and the Film's editorial needs. Any limits on the number of revisions or any additional work should be agreed in writing.

The Director may make reasonable edits to the delivered music for synchronization, duration, sound mixing, transitions, and distribution, as permitted under Section 4.

The Composer will not be required to provide additional work, new compositions, or substantial revisions outside the agreed scope without a further written agreement.

10. Expenses, Equipment, and Resources

Unless expressly agreed in writing in advance, the Composer is responsible for the Composer's own expenses and equipment.

The Director is not responsible for reimbursing travel, software, recording, instrument, accommodation, or other expenses unless the Director has approved the specific expense in writing beforehand.

Neither party may incur expenses, enter into contracts, or make financial commitments on behalf of the other party without that party's prior written approval.

Any production equipment or materials lent to the Composer remain the property of their respective owners and must be returned upon reasonable request.

11. Confidentiality and Unreleased Materials

The Composer agrees not to disclose or publicly distribute confidential or unreleased Film materials without the Director's prior written permission, except where disclosure is required by law.

Confidential materials may include unreleased scripts, footage, plot details, private production communications, unfinished cuts, private links, and unreleased music cues.

The Composer may discuss the Composer's own general involvement in the Film once the Director has publicly announced the relevant information or has given permission. The parties may agree on a suitable announcement date.

Nothing in this section prevents the Composer from exercising rights that cannot lawfully be restricted.

12. Portfolio Use and Independent Promotion

After the Film has been publicly released, or earlier with the Director's written permission, the Composer may identify the Film as a project the Composer worked on and may include appropriate excerpts of the Composer's contribution in a professional portfolio, website, or showreel, provided that the use does not disclose confidential material or violate third-party rights.

The Composer may identify the Composer's role and use the agreed credit. The Composer may not independently distribute unreleased Film footage, the full Film, or confidential production materials without permission.

The Director may identify the Composer and use the agreed credit in connection with the Film and its promotion under the licence granted in this Agreement.

13. Safety, Independent Status, and Responsibility

The parties will communicate promptly about any material issue affecting the Composer's participation or delivery of the music.

The Composer remains responsible for the Composer's own work methods, equipment, and working environment, except where the parties expressly agree otherwise. Each party will take reasonable care not to create avoidable risks to the other.

Nothing in this Agreement is intended to exclude liability where such exclusion is prohibited by law or to waive any statutory rights or protections that cannot lawfully be waived.

The parties intend to collaborate as independent participants in the production. This wording does not determine employment status where applicable law requires a different result.

14. Withdrawal and Termination

Either party may withdraw from future participation by giving written notice to the other party. Where reasonably possible, the parties should provide advance notice sufficient to reduce disruption to the production.

Upon withdrawal, the Composer will provide any completed deliverables already agreed to be delivered and reasonably cooperate in arranging the handover of completed work, subject to any separate written agreement and applicable law.

The Director will not be entitled to demand unfinished or additional work that was not agreed to be completed. The parties will communicate in good faith about incomplete work and any practical transition needed to finish the Film.

The licence granted for music already delivered or expressly approved for use in the Film survives termination, subject to the terms of this Agreement and applicable law. Withdrawal does not automatically revoke permission to distribute a completed Film containing music already licensed under this Agreement.

If the Composer has not yet delivered a particular composition or recording, the licence does not automatically extend to that undelivered material.

If a material breach occurs, the parties will give written notice describing the breach and a reasonable opportunity to remedy it where appropriate. Nothing in this section removes remedies or obligations imposed by applicable law.

15. Festival Awards and Recognition

The parties acknowledge that the Film may be submitted to festivals, competitions, awards programs, and other exhibitions.

The Director may submit the Film and the Licensed Music incorporated in it for consideration, including in categories recognizing music, original score, sound, or overall achievement, subject to applicable festival rules.

Any monetary award payable to the Composer is governed by Section 1. The Director will make reasonable efforts to ensure that the Composer is correctly identified in submissions and award materials relating to the Composer's contribution.

The parties will comply with festival rules concerning award recipients, credits, eligibility, and any restrictions on the distribution of prize money.

16. General Provisions

Entire agreement. This Agreement records the parties' understanding regarding the Composer's contribution and the rights granted under it. Any earlier inconsistent understanding concerning these same matters is superseded by this Agreement.

Written amendments. Any amendment to this Agreement must be made in writing and accepted by both parties. Email confirmation may be used where it clearly identifies the agreed change.

Severability. If a provision is found unenforceable, the remaining provisions will continue to apply to the extent permitted by law. The parties will seek a lawful replacement that most closely reflects the original purpose.

No implied transfer of ownership. Except for the express licence granted in this Agreement, neither party transfers ownership of intellectual property to the other.

Governing Law. This Agreement will be governed by the laws of the State of Texas, without regard to its conflict-of-law principles, subject to applicable mandatory law.

Electronic signatures. The parties may sign separate copies or use electronic signatures to the extent permitted by applicable law.

Opportunity for review. Each party acknowledges having had the opportunity to read this Agreement, ask questions, and seek independent legal advice before signing.
